What's below does not seem to still address the questions

Are we announcing who we awarded the subcontract to and when that will happen?

Do we have a date for when we anticipate the temporary treatment system to be in place?
Or how long the transition will take?

All of that should be in the release. Is the region sending us a new version?

Hi Shaun & David,

-I just received the consent to subcontract package from vendor and am reviewing. Should take no more than 2 hours to review.

-The Purchase Request needed to fund the subcontract has not yet been approved. PR-R8-15-00465. Once received, should take no more than 2 hours to process.

-As a courtesy to vendors, I would like to verify that prime contractor has already notified the subcontractor prior to our press release.

I would suggest late today or tomorrow for press release. David, do you agree?

We are revising the statement with the comments we've received. It looks like now we won't be able to release this until Tues or Wednesday while we finalize the authorization of this work.

All,

Since it is a subcontract that is being awarded by the prime contractor, for accuracy's sake, I suggest the first line of announcement read as follows:

Once I get approval from HQ, I need to know what the process is for awarding the subcontract and how/what we can announce. Can one of you call me or if needed we could have a conference call.

Thanks

All,

We are working on announcing a decision on temporary treatment of the mine discharges through the winter. The decision hasn't been finalized, but the recommendation is for a package treatment plant. The vendor has already been selected (from among 6 bids we received) by a panel of tech experts. Given the need to move quickly to stay ahead of winter conditions in getting the treatment plant on site and operational, we hope to finalize the decision today.

Below is draft press release in anticipation of approval of this approach. Please provide comments/edits.

Shaun
